

“What is a Thermocouple and How does it work”

THERMOCOUPLE is a device constructed of two dissimilar metals welded together. The electrical resistance across the connection changes with temperature, which is compared to known values allowing for an accurate temperature to be measured.

If a thermocouple breaks; do not glue, twist or solder the ends together!

It MUST be replaced.

